

Transition Town Totnes presents

Skilling Up for Powerdown

New dates

A 10 week evening class developed by Rob Hopkins taught by Klaudia van Gool

Skilling up for Powerdown is an evening class on responses to peak oil and climate change, exploring permaculture, relocalisation, food, energy, waste, water, economy and much more. An inspirational, informative and fun way to spend your Monday evenings, the course explores what peak oil will mean for us as individuals and communities, and what skills and thinking tools we will need in order to embrace it as a positive transition.

Based on permaculture principles, the 10 weeks will explore our relationship with cheap oil, and what the various elements of a lower energy society might look like. How might we design a local food system, or build houses using local materials?

The course was developed by Rob Hopkins, permaculture teacher and founder of the Transition Town Totnes initiative, who runs www.transitionculture.org. The course is taught by Klaudia van Gool, a permaculture teacher and environmental business practitioner and trainer.

Places need to be booked in advance.

Cost £100 waged, £80 concessions, £20 deposit

A limited number of bursaries are available people under 22.

Contact 07816 841129 or email klaudia.vangool@groundwork.org.uk for details.

Begins Monday April 14th 2008 for 10 weeks. 19.00 – 21.45
at The Mansion, 36 Fore Street, Totnes.

www.transitiontowns.org/Totnes
www.transitionculture.org

